

OREGON HENS WIN IN BIG CONTESTS

Barred Rocks and Oreons Took two First and One Second

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis—Oregon college hens won two first prizes and one second in the big national and international contests held in America last year. A pen of ten Oreons laid 2352 eggs at the Storrs, Conn., international egg laying contest, thereby winning first place and establishing a new world record of 2352 eggs a year per pen in a pen of ten.

A pen of five barred rocks took second place at the all-northwest contest at Pullman by laying an average of 251.6 eggs each. This broke all previous performances for pens of five in American contests, but lacked three eggs—only three-fifths of an egg each—of tying for first place, which was taken by a pen of white leghorns laying 252.2 each. The average for all 135 competing pens was 171 eggs.

A pen of six barred rocks at the British Columbia contest took first with a record of 200 eggs in 11 months for each hen. The next highest laid 180 eggs.

In addition to the foregoing birds the poultry department had a pen of ten barred rocks in the Storrs contest which averaged 172.8 eggs. The average of the 100 pens was 158.9. The college also entered a pen of white leghorns in the Pullman contest that averaged 224 eggs.

Ten thousand settings of eggs and more than 3000 pedigreed cockerels from these high-producing strains have been sent out to Oregon and other farmers and their influence in grading up the home flocks has brought many a poultryman into contact with 200-egg flocks.

"SPEAK TO ALIENS"

Native of France Urges Americans to Greet Foreigners Cordially

When Filnt, Mich., a few days ago decided to make the effort to bring its entire foreign-born population of 16,000 persons into American citizenship, so that it might be the first all-American city in the United States, one of the most stimulating occurrences of the big civic meeting at which the program was adopted came in the speech of an elderly Filnt resident of French nativity.

Rising to address the meeting, he said: "I'm French, and I'm proud of it. I have just one criticism to make of this country."

"That is, that no one apparently ever took the trouble to interest himself in my becoming a citizen. The foreigner, you say, is sly. That is so. Therefore, don't leave him to himself. Make him realize that you welcome him, that you want him to stay here as an American, and that all Americans are his friends."

"There's nothing that appeals so much to a man in a strange land as a friendly word, whether it comes from a friend or a stranger. If employers and superintendents in business plants would think in the morning to bid their foreign-born workers a cheery good day, they would be surprised at the results that would follow in the way of co-operation and friendliness. And, by the way, that is something that need not be confined exclusively to the foreign born."

Butter Sold as Lubricant

Butter sold as a lubricant was the way the profiteers evaded the food regulations in Germany. The government had placed a maximum price on the sale of butter, but the rich found a way out of it. No limit had been placed on lubricating material, and as a result those with money were able to obtain all the butter they sought.

NEWS OF THE AIR

Although the development of aviation for war purposes is now on the decline, aviation news items are still of interest because of the many important uses for which aircraft are available; and for this reason we submit the following items:

Recently on a single day—December 31st—Lieut. T. C. Rodman of the U. S. Marine Corps, at Pensacola, Fla., made airplane flights, with 11 passengers, totaling 900 miles, and thus became winner of the cash prize of $1,000 for the longest, single-day flight of the year 1918.

The world's airplane altitude record was broken at Martlesham, England, on Jan. 3rd, 1919, by Capt. Lang, R. A. F., with Lieut. Bowers as passenger, when in 66 minutes and 15 seconds they reached a height of 30,500 feet, at which point the engine stopped because of a lack of fuel. The previous airplane altitude record was made on September 18, 1918, near Canton, Ohio, by Capt. R. W. Schroeder, who at that time succeeded in reaching a height of 28,000 feet.

It is reported that, among the airplanes which are being surrendered by Germany under the terms of the armistice, there are a number of new machines of a type which the Germans claim, would have given them control of the air if the war had continued. These machines contain Bavarian motors, of a hitherto secret design, which are said to generate 30 horsepower more than the powerful Mercedes motors. There is also reported to be in connection with these planes, a new method of storing gasoline which prevents it from burning during flight. While the improvements pointed out in connection, with these machines are important, they do not seem to be sufficient—especially in view of the surprises in airplane construction which the Allies were preparing for the Central Powers when hostilities ceased—to justify the German idea that these new planes would have given them aerial supremacy. Apparently this is just another bad German guess.

TASTY SAUSAGE

Ever eat potato and nut sausage? If you haven't, there is a treat in store for you and at the same time you will be helping conserve the meat supply. The recipe for this delicious dish is one vouchered for by the department of agriculture. It follows:

2 cups mashed potatoes.
½ pound nuts of any kind.
1 egg well beaten.
1½ teaspoons salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
Few grains cayenne.
Pinch celery seed.
½ cup milk (approximately).
½ pound salt pork.

To the mashed potatoes add enough milk to bind them. Put the nuts in boiling water to loosen the skins, remove skins and put through meat grinder. Mix nuts and potatoes thoroughly and season well. Add well-beaten egg to potato mixture. Form into sausages, flour them well, put into greased pan, and put a small piece of salt pork on top of each sausage. Bake in a fairly hot oven until brown (about 45 minutes). Serve with tomato sauce.

Groping in the Dark

Did you ever stumble around in the dark to look for a match and find that—

Doors stand out nine feet from the wall?

The table reaches entirely across the room?

The electric light switch has disappeared?

The wall advances to the center of the room to meet you?

The chairs each have twenty-seven legs?

And the bureau on which you left
